STATCHENT OF INTENT JEWATE BILL MG. 102

The logislature intends that water rights should not be cusatified in a temporary preliminary, preliminary, or final decree except an historically defined in Nontana and except where a water judge determines that quantification of both volume and flow rate are required to adequately administer the right. For estable, most irrigation water rights have been defined in fontane only by flow rate, reservoir rights have been commonly defined by volume, and hydropower rights have been defined by both flow rate and volume. The courts retain discretionary power to mantify water rights in terms of their historic definitions. It is the litent of the legislature that the water judges evenue their discretionary power on all e isting and future decrees to reduce, to the votant possible, rejections to water rights have been to be post historically been defined by volume.
