States constitution or prohibited from delegation to the states under the 10th amendment to the United States constitution. The state of Montana has the right to reject any attempt by the federal government to usurp the state's power by forced federal mandates, orders, directions, or commands derived from powers not enumerated in or otherwise granted by the United States constitution, especially when individual freedoms are affected or other constitutional protections are compromised. The state's rejection may be in the form of a bill, joint resolution, or executive order."

NEW SECTION. Section 2. Submission to electorate. This amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of Montana at the general election to be held in November 1998 by printing on the ballot the full title of this act and the following:

[] FOR asserting Montana's right to reject federal mandates, orders, directions, or commands derived from powers not granted by the United States constitution.

[] AGAINST asserting Montana's right to reject federal mandates, orders, directions, or commands derived from powers not granted by the United States constitution.
