

MINUTES OF THE MEETING
HUMAN SERVICES AND AGING COMMITTEE
MONTANA STATE
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

February 6, 1985

The meeting of the Human Services and Aging Committee was called to order by Chairperson Nancy Keenan on February 6, 1985 in Room 312-2 of the State Capitol.

ROLL CALL: All members were present.

HOUSE BILL NO. 579: Hearing commenced on House Bill No. 579. Representative Winslow, District #89, sponsor of the bill, stated that a person requesting voluntary admission to the Montana State Hospital receive certification from a community mental health center and that adequate treatment is unavailable in the community and to remove reference to financial ability to pay for services in the community was needed.

Proponent Curt Chisholm, deputy director of the Montana Department of Institutions testified that such a bill would eliminate much of the misunderstanding associated with admission to the Montana State Hospital. Baily Mullen also indicated his support of this bill.

There being no further proponents or opponents to this bill, Representative Winslow was then excused by the Chairperson.

Questions arose from Representative Wallin. Wallin asked Mr. Chisholm what the procedure was for admittance to a mental hospital.

There being no further questions, Chairperson Keenan closed the hearing.

HOUSE BILL NO. 560: Hearing commenced on House Bill No. 560. Representative Bardanouve of District #16, sponsor of the bill stated that an act removing the Swan River Youth Forest Camp from designation as a juvenile correctional facility was needed. Bardanouve also commented that the camp had originally been established for troubled youth and he was one of the initial sponsors of the legislation for its establishment.

Proponent Curt Chisholm, deputy director of the Montana Department of Institutions stated that the Swan River Camp had not housed juveniles for over two years. The establishment is presently being used to house young adult criminals.

There being no further proponents or opponents, the hearing was closed by Representative Bardanouve.

Questions were raised by Representative Wallin who asked how long the facility had housed adults only. Representative Bardanouve asked if the Committee might establish an amendment to remove the word "youth" from the title.

There being no further discussion, Chairperson Keenan closed the hearing.

HOUSE BILL NO. 358: Hearing commenced on House Bill No. 358. Representative Kadas, District #55, sponsor of the bill stated that an act to create a missing children information program within the Department of Justice; to require law enforcement authorities to submit missing children reports to the program; to require the superintendent of public instruction to distribute monthly, to the schools, a list of missing school age children; and to require schools to contact any parent whose child is absent without parental verification of the absence.

Proponents included Jess Long who indicated that the age of 18 years should be changed to 16 years with regard to reporting these missing children to authorities. Dan Adcock supplied written testimonial which indicated his support of a state missing child program and that photos may be effective tools for locating children and a centralized area should be established and that more extensive efforts of the schools in contacting homes is imperative. Exhibit 1 indicates his support. JoAnne Peterson, Montana Education Association supplied Exhibit 2 which stated that the MEA's goals were to strengthen child protection. Bill Irwin, Department of Justice supplied information on the attributes of dental records and also supplied a copy of a newspaper article on missing children. Exhibit 3 is attached regarding Mr. Irwin's testimony.

There were no further proponents and opponents present. Representative Kadas was then excused by the chairperson.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

ACTION ON HOUSE BILL NO. 183: Representative Darko made a motion which was seconded by Representative Cohen that House Bill No. 183 DO PASS. Questions were raised by the Committee. A roll call vote was taken (11 yes and 7 no) to DO PASS.

Comments:

1. Missing children may be classified - Runaways, Throwaways, Parentally Abducted, Criminally Abducted. Montana's ~~children~~ ~~Missing~~ children are no different than rest of U.
2. Most hideous aspect of missing children, the criminally abducted child, may be found in Montana. Large cities are full of runaways.
3. Missoula Taskforce formed to protect children by creating awareness, education + legislation. Bill came to be from combined efforts of Alan Walsh Resource Center National Center for Missing + Exploited Children the taskforce
4. Bill Irwin and Mike Kadas
4. Strong points of Bill
  - Valuates + Supports a state Missing child Program
  - Data, particularly photos, of Montana's Missing Children, may be effective tools for locating children
  - Missing Children Reports - Centralized Area + could stop questions about the timeliness of police reports
  - Schools contacting homes - should be school policy, but this is not the case around Montana.
  - Very Minimal Costs
  - In-to-faced with Federal Missing Child Act.

Hearing on HB 358 (Kadas)

Missing Children Information Program

Before: House Human Services and Aging, Nancy Keenan, Chairman

Testimony by Jo Anne Peterson, Montana Education Association, in support of House Bill 358.

Madame Chairman and members of the committee my name is Jo Anne Peterson, Legislative Intern with the Montana Education Association.

I will testify in support of House Bill 358.

One of MEA's goals this session is to support bills that would strengthen Child Protection Laws in Montana . One of the bills we are supporting is HB 358, that would create a Missing Children Information Program. Legislative action must be taken to better protect the children in our state. We urge you to support this legislation. Thank You.

Perils Stalk Children Beyond Atlanta

Atlanta and murdered children are now synonymous. Daily, the national media bring the viewer and reader an update on the youthful tragedy in the southern metropolis.

But Atlanta is not unique: Across the nation, children, like debris washed upon the shores of the great sexual revolution of the '70s and '80s, are being sexually assaulted, murdered, forgotten. Some are as young as six weeks, others are 3, or 8 or 15. Unfortunately, the press, law enforcement officials and the general public are unaware of just how common the problem is in every part of the country, and many children die singly and obscurely, their silent deaths lost to the American conscience.

Sometimes the murders occur in groups, like the four pre-teens in Oakland, Mich., or the three "double initial" murders in Rochester, N.Y. Periodically, they splash across the front pages in groups of 20 or 30, as in the Dean Allen Corll/John Gacy killings in Houston and Chicago, respectively - and now in Atlanta. But for the most part, they die alone in the backwoods and back bedrooms of America. Others, from wealthy, middle-class or blue collar/welfare neighborhoods, at first reported missing, are later identified by grieving parents.

4,000 Murdered

A leading pediatrician from the Medical School at Iowa University estimates that more than 4,000 children are murdered annually in the United States but that many of them go unreported. The 1979 FBI Uniform Crime Report listed 2,773 homicides involving children. Some of these murders were reported in the newspapers, others were not.

But citizens tend to set up human defenses that protect them from having to accept the violent death of a child. Nor can they easily accept the fact that the killer is rarely a stranger. Almost without exception, he or she is either family or friend, one who can quickly and sufficiently win the child's confidence, so as to carry out the crime promptly.

The death of a child from illness or accident is most sorrowful: The death of a child from sexual molestation is almost too horrible to accept. That, perhaps, is the main reason we allow the murders to continue singly or in multiples without focusing on them as a whole. It is better to forget such horror than to face the dark side of the mirror - ourselves. We know only too well the members of our own families whose human frailties have given way to some form of sexual contact with children. But because it is ugly, frightening and threatening to our own lives, we avoid looking at the mirror. We don't want to face, much less expose, our husbands, fathers, uncles, brothers, sons, nephews and close friends who have crossed through to the dark side.

In Salem, Oregon, a district attorney reinforced this "dark side of the mirror" theory when he spoke of his community. From a 1,000-page investigative document on the 1979 murder of 11-year-old Stephanie Newsom, he admitted that "... most of the information is quite sensitive and documents police inquiries into local residents who are sex offenders... There's some pretty ugly stuff in there."

In Atlanta, a top task force member told me, "I never suspected how unsafe our children are in this city - they don't have a ghost of a chance." A 1977 report in Marion County, Indiana, allowed that "there are 400 to 500 known sex offenders living in the county and repeating sex crimes daily... but there is no way we can possibly keep track of the whereabouts of all of (them)..."

Increasingly, throughout American culture, moral standards are being relaxed. Heightened sexual fervor and tempo in movies and television is commonplace and the sensual hype in advertising has become normal and expected. The Freudian message emitting from all forms of media today, wittingly or unwittingly directs its appeal to personalities whose varied sexual interests include sadomasochism and pederasty. More and more troubled and weak-willed adults are pushed beyond their ability to contain abnormal sex drives, leaving children as prime targets for molestation and murder. Senseless murder after senseless murder, the threads of untold horror for our young weave a tapestry of national disgrace.

Take a Stand

Michigan State Police Captain Robert Robertson, who headed an investigation of a series of child murders, summed up the problem:

"This is something we won't be able to handle until the public becomes aware of it and angered by it. Nothing has ever been accomplished until society took a stand - the Civil Rights Movement, the Women's Liberation Movement - somebody has to get outraged."

Who then will become outraged? Will it be the family members who grieve for their young dead? Will it be those communities and individuals who have looked into the dark side of their mirrors? Will it be a coalition of youth groups, religious and civic organizations under a common banner? One thing is certain: The banner awaits a carrier and its first national breeze of concern.

Speaker decries perils facing U.S. children

By STEVE SMITH
of the Missoulian

Many of the people who kidnap, molest, torture and murder children in America don't even bother to bury their victims any more.

They leave the small, brutalized bodies where they fall. They leave them for dogs to find and feast on and for citizens to stumble across as they empty their garbage, rake their leaves or walk to their neighborhood parks for tennis matches.

Ken Wooden, an investigative reporter with ABC-TV's "20/20" and a nationally known authority on the exploitation of children, pulled few punches Saturday morning at the Red Lion Motel Inn when he spoke to more than 40 grade school and high school teachers from Missoula and Polson. His talk, which dealt with the criminal abduction of children, child pornography and prostitution, rape and incest, was sponsored by the National Education Association in conjunction with the Missoula Elementary Education Association (MEEA).

A former special correspondent with the Chicago Sun-Times and the author of "The Children of Jonestown" and "Weeping in the Playtime of Others," Wooden spoke and showed photographs and charts for some three hours. When he was finished, his audience sat in stunned silence, then began asking questions.

"It's really frightening — the whole scene is like a cancer," said William "Letty" Campbell, a fifth-grade teacher at Missoula's Prescott School. "It's chilling information," said Kristin Smyka, a first-grade teacher at Missoula's Paxson School. "It's a shocking revelation," said Natalie Cannon of Washington, D.C., who is a legislative assistant for Montana Sen. John Malcher. "Grass-roots awareness, education, national organization, and money are critically needed."

Some of Wooden's findings will be presented on "20/20" segments scheduled Feb. 23 and March 8. The first segment is titled "They're Murdering Our Children," with the follow-up called "Child Lures."

In connection with the programs, Wooden has written a booklet to help parents educate children about the perils they face on America's streets as well as around schoolyards and on playgrounds. "I honestly believe there's a war on against children, but in our adult world we're oblivious to it," Wooden said. "We don't even look down at the carnage."

Citing the systematic murder of more than 25 children in Atlanta three years ago, as well as John Gacy's grim slaughter spree of 33 boys in Chicago, Wooden said that thousands of children across the nation are being sexually assaulted, murdered and forgotten. What's more, he continued, the press, law enforcement officials and the general public aren't aware of the extent of the problem.

"American soldiers killed in Vietnam had a monument built to them," Wooden said. "The monument to these children is ignorance, indifference and apathy."

Leaving nothing to the imagination, Wooden told horror story after horror story from his years of research. Many were stories of children being lured into cars or vans and spirited away to cities to become part of the country's multimillion-dollar-a-year child pornography and child-sex industry.

"Every generation faces its own unique problem," said Wooden, who is working on a third book, "Prey — Missing and Murdered Children." He added, "This is our own unique problem, and we won't solve it by saying, 'Oh, it's so depressing that I don't want to talk about it.'"

Zeroing in on publishers of adult pornography and magazines such as Hustler and Penthouse, Wooden charged that, increasingly, throughout American culture, moral standards are being relaxed. He called many murdered American children "casualties of the sexual revolution," noted that heightened sexual fervor tin and other prominent newspapers.

As executive director of the National Coalition for Children's Justice and an organizer of what is going to be a national computer network for finding missing children and their abductors and murderers, Wooden believes there are four categories of missing kids. Included are runaways, so-called "throw-away" kids (adolescents whose parents simply kick them out of the house), kids who are kidnapped by divorced parents involved in bitter custody battles, and children who are criminally abducted.

Wooden said that because of the high volume of cases in the first three categories, a "logjam" has been created. The logjam, he said, has hampered efforts of law-enforcement agencies trying to deal with criminal kidnappings.

"Therefore," Wooden said, "cops often wait at least 72 hours before them. The shuttle's robot arm, a dependable piece of equipment every time it's been used, would not move at the wrist.

That scrubbed another satellite rescue rehearsal in which the astronauts were to latch themselves onto a fixture turning at the same rate as Solar Max — one degree per second.
Instead, the space walkers practiced docking with a fixture attached to a box.

They got in an unexpected bonus, however. A foot restraint worked loose and began drifting off. As Brand maneuvered the ship closer, McCandless reached up pulled back the piece of equipment.

"Welcome home, Challenger.
Fantastic!" Mission Control radioed as the ship completed its historic acting on criminally abducted children."

By then, Wooden continued, it's often too late.

Wooden, who touched on cults and the brainwashing tactics of their leaders, talked at length about an underground network of people who are continually adding to extensive collections of child-pornography photographs.

Such collectors, he said, primarily are men, and many are wealthy, prominent people in business, industry, government and politics.

A former teacher and the father of four children, Wooden called America's parents "biological boxcars who deliver young (female and male) lovelies for the sexual appetites" of perverted people.

Wooden's talk in Missoula was a pilot presentation of an alert pro-

Florida Wildlife Commission offi-and alligators, wild pigs, bobcats and foxes sometimes slip through a pro-

None did so on Saturday.
The only previous attempt to land

Dental Records Missing Persons and Unidentified Bodies

44-2-401. Missing persons — dental records. (1) Any person who reports a missing person to a police or sheriff's department or other law enforcement authority must be given a form, supplied by the department of justice, that authorizes the release of the dental records of the missing person. The form must state that if the person is still missing 30 days after the report was made, the form should be signed by a relative of the missing person and taken to the dentist of the missing person, who must release the dental records or copies thereof to the relative. The records must be submitted by the relative within the next 10 days to the law enforcement authority to which the missing person report was made.

(2) If the missing person has not been found within 30 days after the report was made and no relative exists or can be located, the law enforcement authority may execute a signed written declaration stating that an investigation into the location of the missing person is being conducted and that the dental records may be necessary to the investigation. A dentist shall release the missing person's dental records upon presentation of the declaration.

(3) If a person reported missing has not been found within 45 days after the report was made, the law enforcement authority conducting the investigation shall confer with the county coroner or state medical examiner and write a missing person report on a form supplied by the department of justice. The report and any dental records or copies thereof obtained under this section must be submitted to the department of justice.

(4) The department of justice shall maintain an information file concerning each person reported to it as missing. The file must include information received under this section and any other information the department considers relevant to locating the missing person.

(5) The department files must be made available to any law enforcement agency attempting to locate missing persons.

(6) A law enforcement authority that finds a missing person or is notified that he has been found shall notify the department of justice, which shall return all dental records to the dentist and destroy the file prepared under subsection (4) concerning the person.

History: En. Sec. 1, Ch. 389, L. 1983.

44-2-402. Dental examination — records — report. (1) If the coroner cannot identify a body, he or the state medical examiner shall have a dentist examine the body, and if the body cannot be identified from the dental examination, the coroner or state medical examiner must send the dental examination results to the department of justice on a form supplied by the department.

(2) The department is a repository for dental examination records filed with it under this section. The department shall compare such records with dental records filed with it pursuant to 44-2-401 in an attempt to identify the body and must submit any findings to the coroner or state medical examiner.

History: En. Sec. 2, Ch. 389, L. 1983.
